ArcGIS Account Access

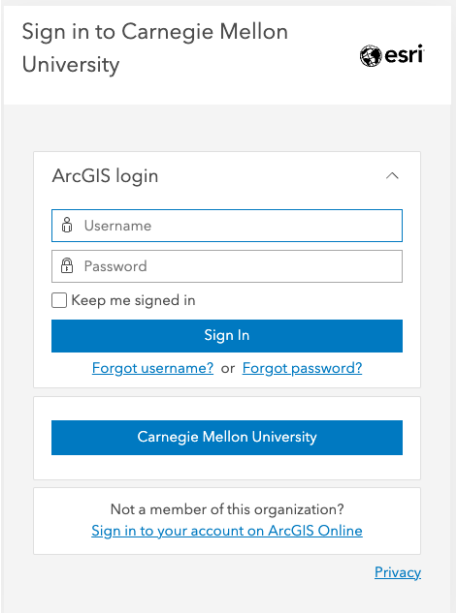

Note: There is no need to download ArcGIS Pro desktop as the Heinz software site indicates. The Pro version will not be used for our class. Rather, we will be using the ArcGIS Online product which requires no additional downloaded software.

1. ESRI ArcGIS Software package access:

   https://www.heinz.cmu.edu/current-students/computing-services/software

   Or directly from

   https://carnegiemellon.maps.arcgis.com/home/index.html

2. Don't create a username and a password. Instead, click on "Carnegie Mellon University"
3. Sign in using your CMU credentials.
4. Once logged in, you should see the Carnegie Mellon University start page.

5. Click on the Map option at the top of the frame. A map showing Canada, the United States, Mexico and Central America should appear. If so, your account is good to go!
6. At this point, you can sign out of your account. We will explore the product during class sessions and do several practice exercises together. (Or, if you wish, feel free to experiment. There are tutorials online or you can view some recent student projects under the Gallery option.)
